

Anna

Rhoda

Lulla

Catherine

Cini

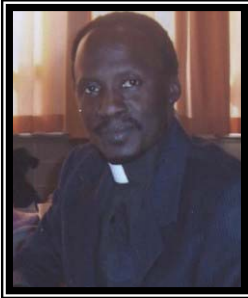

Biatrice

Diana

Justin's Story

Justin

Justin grew up in Sudan, and moved to Canada six years ago due to the deplorable conditions in his home country. Justin makes his livelihood working in a windows factory and his wife has now obtained full time employment in health care. Justin has a family of seven with five still living at home. The oldest of the five is in first year university and the youngest is five years old.

Justin is an ordained Anglican minister, serving the Sudanese community in Winnipeg. This community is relatively new to Winnipeg and Canada.

His brother and brother's wife were both murdered in Sudan, leaving seven orphaned children. Justin was able to get the services of a lady to stay with the children and look after their well-being but they were living in constant fear and danger. In November of 2005, Justin went back to Sudan and was able to get the children moved to Uganda where they are a little bit safer. The 18-year old is looking after her six siblings and Justin was assured that the house was theirs as long as he forwarded $400 US monthly. Since moving to Uganda, the children are able to attend school and learn some English!! Justin has filled out all the paper work and is applying to adopt all of the children including the newest baby that has been born to his 17 year old niece.

Baby Nelson

Justin and his wife have put aside everything they could in order to purchase a home. Now there will be a home for everyone to live in when he can get them to Canada. He has a permit to start renovations as soon as they take possession and has lined up help to build bedrooms and a bath in the basement.

The Kinette Club of Stonewall donated funds to get the paper work done so Justin could start the procedure of bringing his extended family to Canada. The paper work is complete and some of it has to be delivered to the children. A lady from the area is taking part in an exchange to Uganda and has agreed to hand deliver the papers to the Canadian Embassy in Uganda. Now they are looking to raise $15 - $20,000 to provide airfare to Canada for Justin's extended family. Can you help us?